The remains of Mrs. Ettie Southall, wife of Dr. J. A. Southall, who died Monday, were laid to rest in Riverside Cemetery Tuesday afternoon. Her funeral was preached by Rev. A. R. Kasey in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends. Mrs. Southall was a member of the Methodist Church.

MAN SHOT TUESDAY

A Difficulty Started While Two Negroes Were Shooting Craps.

AMOUNT INVOLVED WAS 10c.

Ben Dillard Who Did Shooting Fled, But Was Captured By Officers.

Two negro men, George Martin and Ben Dillard got into a difficulty Tuesday afternoon, just after 1 o'clock, which resulted in Martin being shot by Dillard.

The shooting took place where the L. & N. railroad crosses First street. Both of them were section hands, Martin working for foreman Butler who has the section extending North from the city and Dillard working on one of the sections farther North. Martin's home is said to be somewhere in South Carolina, but he has been working here for some time.

Tuesday afternoon the negroes were in a box car standing on a siding shooting craps, it is said, and got to quarreling over ten cents when foreman Butler made them get out of the car. After leaving the car they continued their quarrel when Dillard drew his gun and fired at Martin, the ball taking effect in his left side just above the hip.

Dillard at once started on a run to escape arrest. The Sheriff, being apprised of what had occurred, sent deputies to the place where the difficulty had occurred. Policemen W. E. Shanklin and George Walker afterwards took part in the chase and succeeded in overtaking and arresting Dillard at Hord's grocery, on Durrett Avenue, and placed him in jail.

Drs. Harned and Gaither were called by telephone and after examining Martin found it necessary to have him removed to the office of Drs. Thomas & Gaither to probe for the ball.

The shooting drew a large crowd of the colored population to the place where the difficulty occurred and after Martin had been placed in an express wagon many followed it to the office of Dr. Gaither and assisted in taking the wounded man up stairs.

Martin was reported yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock as resting quietly, with good chances of recovery.

Chief of Police Roper had the pistol yesterday with which Dillard shot Martin. Dillard had bought it that morning and told Chief Roper that he had bought it to kill another negro, who had taken a shot at him early Tuesday morning.

Judge Knight will investigate the case as soon as Martin is able appear in court.

WILLIAMS-BUSH.

Dr. J. W. F. Williams, of Lafayette, and Miss Lillian Bush, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Bush, Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. D. Smith, of the Christian Church. The wedding march was played by Mrs. R. E. Coates and the wedding was attended by a number of the friends of the contracting parties. Dr. and Mrs. Williams left at once on a short Southern trip, and upon their return will reside at Lafayette.

WOMEN ARE TO VOTE

In The Contest For County School Superintendent on Nov. 4th.

HAVE SEPARATE BALLOTS.

Few In The City Can Vote As They Cannot Legally Register.

County Clerk Stowe on Tuesday received a telegram from Assistant Attorney General M. M. Logan, directing him to prepare separate ballots for women to vote in the race for superintendent of common schools. The ballots will have no names upon them except those of L. E. Foster and W. E. Gray, the candidates of the Democratic and Republican parties. Few if any women are registered in the seven precincts of Hopkinsville and none can register next week except such as were prevented by absence or sickness from registering October 6. Consequently at least one-fourth of the women of the county will not possess all of the qualifications to entitle them to a vote. There are no indications that any considerable number of women in the county precincts will take any interest in the election. As many of the precincts have more than 400 voters, it would be a problem for one clerk to poll the vote if the number of voters should suddenly be doubled. Every woman who voted would take the risk of knocking out a man's vote.

SOCIETY LEADER

Of New York To Go As Missionary To Moros.

The civilization of savage Moros in the Philippines is the goal aimed at by Mrs. Lorrillard Spencer, society leader of New York and Newport, and Miss Virginia C. Young, a deaconess in the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Accompanied by a physician, a trained nurse and a teacher of manual training they propose settling on the island of Jolo, the domain of the Moros.

The enterprise is one of civilization. A few months ago Mrs. Spencer and Miss Young visited Jolo in a tour of the east. They were shocked at the situation there.

A few days before they reached Jolo, a battle had been fought with American troops and the natives in which a number of Americans were killed and hundreds of Moros slain.

To the protest of the horrified visitors Gen. Pershing could only respond that greatly as it was to be regretted the only recourse he had was to the force of arms.

His suggestion that some one should undertake the introduction of other civilizing influences among the natives set both Mrs. Spencer and Miss Young a-thinking and after a conference with Bishop Brent, they decided upon their plan of civilization.

They expect to spend a year on the island of Jolo, and establish there under the protection of Gen. Pershing and his troops a center into which they will gradually draw the natives. Weaving, carpentry, agriculture and other industries will be taught them. Should it become evident within the year that the project is hopeless it will be abandoned.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Dabney left for Dawson Tuesday to remain a week or two for the benefit of Mr. Dabney's health.

EMMELINE IS LET IN

Militant Leader Loses an Opportunity to Play The Part of Martyr.

NO BOND WILL BE REQUIRED.

But If She Is Not Good She Might Be Deported at Any Time.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant British suffragist, is free to enter the United States. The Ellis Island board's order of deportation was reversed after President Wilson had conferred on the celebrated case with Secretary Wilson and a hearing had been concluded before immigration Commissioner Caminetti.

Secretary Wilson declared that he and the President had discussed the question briefly.

"We agreed," he said, "that Mrs. Pankhurst should be admitted on her own recognizance. My own reason is, and the President feels likewise, that there is naturally an element of doubt as to whether her acts constituted moral turpitude or were political in character."

"Being admitted on her own recognizance, of course, if she violates any of our laws, we have two remedies. Our courts may pass on her acts or we may deport her. There being the element of doubt as to whether moral turpitude or political offense was involved, we decided that we have sufficient safeguards, and that there can be no harm in admitting her."

The decision by the President and Secretary Wilson was communicated to Commissioner General Caminetti, who issued the formal order of release.

FOUR NATIONS

Stirred Up By Act of Mexican Rebels.

Mexico City, Oct. 20.—The holding of forty-three Germans at Torreon by General Francisco Villa as hostages against an attack by federal forces has aroused the German government to make strong demands upon the Mexican foreign office to insure their safety.

General Villa permitted the Americans to depart from Torreon but held the Germans, about the same number of French residents, ten or twelve Britishers and several Spaniards, declaring that his purpose was to use them as a foil to deter the federals from attacking the city. He also let it be known, according to advices received here, that they would be sacrificed unless the effort to retake Torreon was abandoned.

What action the foreign office proposes to take has not yet been determined.

SULZER

Running for The Legislature as A Progressive.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—A few minutes after the progressive convention that nominated him as assemblyman met in New York, William Sulzer issued a statement telling why he had "consented to come back to Albany."

There never was any doubt but that he could have the nomination if he wanted it, he declared. Nor does he doubt that the first of January will see him back where he began his political career twenty years ago. He and his friends also are convinced that he will go from there to the speakership and thence back to the governor's chair.

Sulzer will go to New York and begin a campaign for the assembly immediately and speak day and night up to election time. After that he will accept some lecture engagements up to the first of January.

BIG BLAZE, HEAVY LOSS

Most Destructive Fire The City Has Had For Over Two Years.

LOSSES MAY FOOT UP $5,000.

Three or Four Men and Firms Are Quickly Put Out Of Business.

A little after 10 o'clock Tuesday morning an alarm of fire was turned in from Fifth and Virginia streets. When the department reached the scene they found the frame and sheet iron building occupied by S. Cristol as a junk shop; King & Buckner, colored undertakers; Neal Wilson as a feed store and another room not occupied, burning so furiously that before they could attach the hose to the hydrant the wooden part of the structure and the hay stored in the building were almost in ashes before the two streams of water were turned on. The fire fighters did fine work and soon had the flames so well under control that the store and office brick building, which was separated by a driveway, were out of danger, though it was thought at one time the brick building would be destroyed.

The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Cristol was in the room which he used as an office and said yesterday that the first intimation he had of the building being on fire was when he saw the flames eating up Mr. Wilson's hay and other feed. Before the fire department reached the fire the building was so far gone that it was impossible for the firemen to save it.

Mr. Cristol says his loss is about $600, with no insurance.

Mr. C. F. Shelton, the owner of the buildings destroyed, placed his loss at $1,800, insurance about half that amount.

The losses of the other parties will probably bring the total loss up to about $5,000.

All the buildings that escaped destruction and the buildings burned were erected on the site where the Dagg planing mill once stood, and which was destroyed by fire several years ago.

This is the first destructive fire that has occurred for several months.

WOMAN KILLED BY TRAIN

Struck By South Bound Dixie Flyer Yesterday Morning.

VICTIM DEAF AND DUMB.

Both Arms Broken and Chest And Ribs Were Crushed.

Esther Brewer, a colored woman, was struck by a South-bound Dixie Flyer yesterday morning and was instantly killed.

The woman was deaf and dumb and was about 50 years of age. She lived with her mother just outside the city limits near the new tank on the L. & N. She was beyond the tank on the railroad picking up coal. The engineer blew his whistle but the woman, of course, made no effort to get off the track and it struck her squarely, throwing the body to one side of the track. The train was behind time and was running at the usual speed and it was impossible, most probably, to have stopped the train before reaching the unfortunate woman.

Coroner Rice was called and he declared, inquest, the jury's verdict merely stating that the woman was killed by the train. Cor. Rice says that death was instantaneous and that both arms were broken and the breast and ribs were badly crushed.

MRS. SALINA MYERS

Most Excellent Lady Gone To Her Reward.

Mrs. Salina Myers died Monday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. T. Fruit, on East Ninth street. She had been in declining health for several months and a few weeks ago came to the city from her home in the country.

Mrs. Myers was the widow of the late Esq. S. H. Myers and was 79 years old. She had been a member of the Baptist church for many years and was a lady held in the highest esteem by every one who knew her. Six children survive. They are Mrs. S. T. Fruit, of this city, Mrs. Eva Boyd, Mrs. M. J. Fruit, Henry C. Myers and S. T. Myers. The sixth child is D. F. Myers, of Pocatello, Idaho.

The interment took place yesterday at the family burying ground a few miles east of Kelly, services being held at the grave.

LOOSE FLOOR SALES

Will Begin Shortly and Money Will Be Plentiful.

With a short wheat crop, which was sold at too low a figure, followed by a short corn crop, as well as other farm products, but backed up to some extent by the good quality of a short tobacco crop which has not begun to come in yet, the farmers have probably been a little short of money during the summer and thus far in the fall. But immediate relief is near at hand. The loose floor dealers are arranging to take care of the new tobacco crop, which will begin coming in a short time and money will be plentiful. Christian county can well stand an off crop year, and the opinion is general that the farmers were never in better shape financially.

Among the many loose floor men soliciting patronage is the new firm of D. M. Butler & Co., who will do business in the warehouse used by Hancock & Jackson last season.

Mrs. J. Mark Robbins, of Los Angeles, Cal., who had been visiting her sister, Mrs. L. Hisgen, left yesterday for her home.

A challenge to a duel was sent by one French septuagenarian warrior, Gen. Bosco, aged 72, to another still older, Gen. Georges Florentin, aged 77, grand chancellor of the legion of Honor. At last accounts the seconds were trying to persuade the old fellows that a fight was not necessary.

Lieutenant Garnier and Sapper Jenrot, of the Ebnal military aeroplane depot, were killed in France. They were returning from Buc when the engine of their monoplane stalled suddenly. The machine capsized and the aviators fell from a height of 800 feet. About the same time Corporal Aviator Dautroche, of the same depot, while making a flight near the depot, met with an almost similar and fatal accident.

SOUPS THAT NOURISH

THREE RECIPES FOR EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD ONES.

Taploca-Tomato One of the Best of the Heavy Ones—Solferino Also May Be Recommended—Soup With Beaten Eggs.

Taploca-Tomato Soup.—Put three ounces of taploca into a saucepan and pour over about a quart of strained broth, boil for a few minutes and move to the side of the fire to simmer gently. Remove the seeds from three or four large tomatoes and put the latter in a saucepan with a small onion, a sprig of parsley, and a bay-leaf, also a few peppercorns and salt to taste. Place the saucepan on the fire and reduce the moisture of the tomatoes, then rub the whole through a sieve into the broth and taploca. Serve when the taploca is thoroughly soft and dissolved.

Solferino Soup.—Put into a saucepan with some clear stock an equal quantity each of new potatoes, string beans, young carrots and green peas, adding a little chopped celery and parsley. Let the soup simmer by the side of the fire till the vegetables are cooked, then put in a little tomato puree and season with pepper and salt. Put some croutons of fried or toasted bread in the soup tureen, pour the soup over them and serve.

Meatless Soup, Sussex.—Cut two large onions into slices and put them into a saucepan with a quarter of a pound of butter and toss over the fire for a few minutes. Then put in with the onions some celery cut into small pieces, a bunch of chopped parsley, and some finely shredded lettuce. Stir these ingredients over the fire for 15 minutes and then put in a teacupful of crushed dry biscuits or crackers and a quart of boiling milk and water mixed in equal parts. Season with salt and pepper and allow to simmer on the fire for an hour. Immediately after taking from the fire beat one or two eggs well and stir them in. Serve with sippets of toast (small squares).

Quince Marmalade. Pare, quarter and core quinces, cut in little squares. Measure and allow an equal amount of sugar. Place fruit in a porcelain kettle, with just enough water to cover, boil until tender and skim out carefully. Make a sirup of the sugar and water in which quinces were boiled. Let come to boiling point, skim well and drop quinces gently in. Boil 15 minutes and dip out carefully into jelly tumblers. The sirup forms a jelly around the fruit so that it can be turned out on dish, and is very palatable. In this way quinces too defective for preserves may be used. Take thick parings and use with cores for jelly.

Cheap Dark Cake. One-half cup of butter creamed with one cup of sugar. Add one cup unsweetened apple sauce, into which one level teaspoon of baking soda is dissolved in one tablespoon of boiling water which has been well stirred, one and three-quarters cups of flour (sifted), one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of cloves, one-half teaspoon salt, one large cup of raisins. Bake 45 minutes. (Makes one loaf.) This cake, in which the only moisture in addition to a tablespoon of water is apple sauce, is very much like dark fruit cake.

Potatoes Lyonnaise. Cut into small square two ounces salt pork and one white onion; place both in a saucepan with a teaspoonful of butter and brown for ten minutes, lightly stirring meanwhile. Add six medium peeled and washed raw potatoes, and one bay leaf cut into half-inch squares. Moisten with half pint broth. Season with two saltspoonfuls salt and half teaspoonful pepper, lightly mix, cover the pan and boil for five minutes, then set the pan in the hot oven for 40 minutes. Remove, dress on a hot vegetable dish and serve.

Good Dumplings. In making a stew like either lamb or beef, chicken or any kind, in fact, dumplings are the hardest part. This is the way I make mine, says a correspondent, and I want some of the other sisters to try them: One pint of pastry flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, pinch of salt. Stir in enough water to make light batter. Then, while stew is cooking rapidly, drop into stew kettle by spoonfuls. Cover lightly and let alone for ten minutes. You will find them as round and light as can be.

Crystallized Fruit. Boil two cups sugar with a cup of water and one-quarter teaspoon of cream tartar. Test it by dropping a little in cold water; when brittle remove from fire. Dip into it sections of orange from which all skin is removed, white grapes, cherries and fruit of any kind. Spread on waxed paper to harden.

Pressed Beef. Take the thin pieces of pickled beef and boil until well done, then pick it to pieces, season with pepper, salt and allspice. Put in a cloth, press with a heavy weight. When ready to serve, slice thin.

Pie-Making Tip. Sprinkle a little cornmeal on the pie plate before making a pie and you will have the bottom crust as light as the top, as the cornmeal absorbs the moisture.—Los Angeles Express.

PUT TO THE TEST

By CLARISSE HORTON.

"If you can love me without seeing me or hearing from me for a whole year, then I will marry you," she had said; and the year had passed and Rankin still loved her.

He was standing by the same Adirondacks lake where they had met twelve months before. It was a cool day in July; the wind was skimming over the surface of the water, the pines rustled, a loon was crying far away. Everything in nature had contributed to make that day one of perfect remembrance. And it was the same today as it had been.

She was secretary to the president of a corporation, Rankin had learned, and she was recovering from a serious illness. Their hotels were separated by half a mile of undergrowth which covered the projecting flank of Big Mountain. They had met at the point of the lake where Rankin fished, and he had ventured a "good-morning." After that their acquaintance was a rapid one, and love perched in the background till, growing bolder, he stood between them.

Those days of meeting! That delicious happiness of love confessed! This was no flirtation. They were made for each other. But she would not tell him her name, nor let him come to her hotel.

"I have a very good reason," she answered when he protested. "You must not try to find out anything more about me now. But if you can love me for a whole year, then I will marry you."

"And never know who you are?" he cried.

"O, I'm nobody mysterious, just a plain workaday woman," she answered, smiling.

"And when the year has passed?" "I shall be here next year. I shall wait for you here—let me see, today is July 28. A year from today."

And all his pleas were unavailing. Despair alternated with unexpressed happiness. He praised her beauty, her eyes, blue as the lake water; her hair, soft as yellow silk; her gait, her gestures, all intoxicated him. She heard his compliments musingly, and with a slight frown.

"If you could love me—I mean me, apart from these external things," she sighed.

"I adore you," insisted Rankin. That was on their last day together. He Stood Staring at His Trophy.

gathered her into his arms and, kissing her, knew that his love was truly returned.

A trout leaped in the lake among the lily pads, and Rankin drew a length of line from his reel.

"I believe I'll have a cast for that fellow," he said, and raised his rod and threw it forward. The line caught behind him. Rankin heard a stifled cry and turned. Upon the barbed fly was the girl's hat, and under it, a complete toupee of hair.

Before he could stir, the girl, with a low cry, pressed her hands to her head and darted into the undergrowth. Rankin heard it crackle as she ran; then the crackling died away and he stood staring at his hideous trophy.

He understood now what she meant by her disparagement of his praises, and the remembrance, the rising pity, made his love truer and more intense than before. During the year that followed, throughout the fall and the long, cold winter months he dreamed perpetually of a lake studded with sunshine and a girl who stood beside him on its brink. He understood the shame in her heart, her swift disarmament by his discovery of her secret. He longed for her. He looked for her on every street, but he never encountered her.

If she came back now he would prove his fidelity. But he had little hope that she would come. Yet, because his love was stronger than his disbelief, he stood upon the wooded point of the same lake a year later and waited.

The sun dropped in the sky, the loon called, a trout leaped among the lilies, and then, sadly, he turned to go. She would not come. He had known it; and something went out of his life like the sun that suddenly went out of the sky. And then—she stood before him.

"You!" he exclaimed, catching her by the hands and looking at her with utter incredulity.

"You!" she answered, and the joy in her face reflected that upon his own. "O, I never dreamed that you would come."

"Then why did you come?" asked Rankin.

"Because I had pledged my word," she answered. "But you—why have you come here? Surely—surely—" her voice was tremulous—"that was all a jest last year."

"I have come back to prove that it was no jest," Rankin answered.

"No," she cried, and her cheeks grew scarlet, "you have come back because you are an honorable man. You think you are pledged. But you cannot want to marry me now." Her voice fell. "You can't want to marry me after—after that," she whispered.

"But I do want you," he answered, taking her by the hands. "I love you just as much, I have dreamed of this meeting all through the months of our separation. Do you think my love is so weak that it is to be influenced by that unhappy accident? If you had never told me, but married me, and I had discovered it afterward, I should have been just as glad."

She faced him squarely, looking full into his eyes. "Suppose I put you to the test," she said. "Dare you look upon me now—as I am—and then say that you wish to marry me?" "I am ready," Rankin answered quietly. "But surely it is not necessary to put me to such a test as that. It would only cause unnecessary suffering to you. Take me at my word as I took you at yours."

For answer she unpinned her hat and placed it on the ground. Then she shook out her hair, fold upon fold of rippling beauty, till it enfolded her to the waist. She swept it back carelessly and looked tauntingly at him.

"Take it," she said, and held out the glittering strands. Rankin stood watching her, his arms folded; it was, indeed, the supreme test of a man's love, to see his sweetheart disfigured, shorn, her beauty suddenly become grotesque.

Suddenly, with an impetuous motion she flung her arms round him.

"O, my dear, I believe in you now," she cried. "Listen! I told you I had been very ill with typhoid last summer. They cut my hair when I was unconscious. Then I came up here to get well, and—and I wore a wig. And when you discovered my secret I thought I would die of mortification. That, too, was why I wouldn't tell you anything then. But now, my dear, I don't have to wear a toupee, because my hair is mine—do you understand? I can't cause you any humiliation or regrets because—"

"Because I love you," answered Rankin; and the loon's distant laugh seemed less ironical than of usual.

Heat Pointers for Blondes.

It's easy to keep cool and not mind the heat if you know how. Here are some hints from an English physician. "Being cool," he says, "is largely a condition of mind. Keep still, watch what you eat and drink, avoid meat, ventilate your clothes as well as your home, bathe freely and avoid extremes of heat and cold in the water. Kill the fly and don't get chilled at night."

"If you are a blond, avoid the bright lights, because they are rich in chemical ether waves. In persons that have considerable pigment in their skins—in brunettes—these short, rapid, actinic waves are transformed into long and slow heat waves. These actinic waves have a deleterious effect on the nervous system of those whose skin cannot reduce their potency."

"Blondes should avoid sunlight as much as possible, and when they do go out they should wear colored glasses, hats with orange lining and their clothes outside should be white, to reflect the heat rays. Their underwear should be colored, preferably orange or blue. This is to protect the skin."

Nearly Smothered.

Chandler, N. C.—Mrs. Augusta Lomax, of this place writes: I had smothering spells every day, so bad I expected death at any time, I could not sit up in bed, I suffered from womanly troubles. My nerves were unstrung. I had almost given up all hope of ever being better. I tried Cardui, and it did me more good than anything I had ever taken. I am better now than I ever expected to be. Thousands of ladies have written similar letters, telling of the merits of Cardui. It relieved their headache, backache and misery, just as it will relieve yours, if you will let it. Try Cardui. HIS VOLUNTEER GUARDIAN

By E. G. HOGSHEAD.

"There," said Mrs. Kenyon, as she hung up the receiver, "I hope she'll feel ashamed of herself now. That's the third time this afternoon that girl has called up to ask for Irving—she wants him to call for her this evening. She's the boldest young woman I ever met."

And her kindly blue eyes flashed and her cheeks reddened. "I don't believe I'll tell him," she declared. "If I do he'll surely go, and I hate to see him imposed on in that fashion."

"But you must tell him, mother," said her daughter. "She'll surely tell him if you don't and he's only our guest, you know. You can't take the liberties with him that you would with Bob. Anyway, he seems quite fond of her!"

"Fond of her!" exclaimed Mrs. Kenyon. "She has deliberately infuriated him. I wish Bob would speak to Irving. As his room-mate at college he ought to have some influence with him. If Irving's mother knew of the attention and money he is lavishing on that girl she'd be horrified. I feel responsible for him while he's in my house. I'd want her to do as much for Bob."

"There's really nothing to do but to let things slide till the boys go back to college next week," declared her daughter.

But the path of least resistance was never the path of duty for Mrs. Kenyon. The difficulty of the situation appealed to her powers of strategy. Dinner that evening was purposely, though apparently by accident, delayed a half hour. From soup to ice she deftly and tactfully discussed the charming girls of their circle with sly innuendos about the unwomanliness of calling up men at all times and imposing upon their leisure.

After dinner two of Bob's friends dropped in for a game of billiards. Mrs. Kenyon welcomed them cordially. She waited till they were all deeply interested in the game. Then she said suddenly:

"There, I nearly forgot. Miss Eldridge called you up several times this afternoon, Irving. She wants you to call for her this evening. The directions are on the phone tablet. I wish I had told you before. I'm so sorry."

Irving, with exasperating cheerfulness, excused himself and hastened away. Mrs. Kenyon met her daughter's teasing smile with a swift glance of indignation.

During the next few days rumors of a theater party and a taxi for a dance increased her chagrin and determination. At the end of the week an opportunity came.

"Mrs. Kenyon," said Irving, with a good deal of embarrassment, "I want a gift for a very dear friend of mine, something worth while—like a fine silk umbrella—for a lady—a stylish one. I hate to put you to any trouble, but you see I don't know much about these things and I thought perhaps you'd help me out."

"But, my dear boy," objected Mrs. Kenyon, "you don't want anything so expensive as that. Flowers, books or music would be just as—"

"But I think a lot of her," he interrupted, "and I want something worth while. Here's $10. I don't know what those things are worth. If it isn't enough just let me know and I'll give you more." Then he hurried out of the room.

Mrs. Kenyon frowned. "The idea!" she said. "Well, that young woman will be disappointed this time. I'll make it my business to see that there'll be no extravagance here."

With purpose of vindictive economy she confined her shopping to the basement sections of the department stores. And it seemed that never before had bargains been so numerous and so alluring.

"This is an unusual bargain," said one salesman. "It's a $12 value reduced to $7.50. It's the very latest style and the only one left."

Mrs. Kenyon fortified herself against the temptation with the vision of Bob in Irving's place and purchased instead a regular $3 silk and cotton umbrella. She met Irving's inquiries with an easy conscience.

"Why, Mrs. Kenyon!" he said. "Are you sure that's good enough? It seems so cheap. Would you have bought just that kind if it had been for yourself?"

"Why, yes, indeed," replied Mrs. Kenyon, promptly forcing down the tantalizing recollection of the $12 value for $7.50. "No one could wish for a nicer one."

"Well, I'm glad of that," he said. "You've been so awfully good to me while I've been here that I wanted to—well, it's for you!"

Equalizing Things.

Two Irishmen arranged to fight a duel with pistols. One of them was distinctively stout and when he saw his lean adversary facing him he raised an objection.

"Bedad," he said, "I'm twice as big a target as he is, so I ought to stand twice as far away from him as he is from me."

"Be aisy now," replied his second. "I'll soon put that right."

Taking a piece of chalk from his pocket he drew two lines down the stout man's coat, leaving a space between.

"Now," he said, turning to the other man, "fire away, ye spalpeen, and remember that any hits outside that chalk line don't count."

Woman's Greatest Trouble.

Big Sandy, Tenn.—Mrs. Lucy Cantrell of this place, says: "Every two weeks, I had to go to bed and stay there several days. I suffered untold misery. Nothing seemed to help me until I tried Cardui, the woman's tonic. Although I had been afflicted with woman weakness for several years, Cardui helped me more than anything else ever did. It is surely the best tonic on earth for women. Weakness is woman's greatest trouble. Cardui is woman's great medicine, because it overcomes that weakness and brings back strength. In the past 50 years, Cardui helped over a million women. Try it for your troubles today."

CONFIDENCE IN THE DOCTOR

Patient's Liking for Stimulant Offered Also May Have Had Something to Do With the Case.

Down in Tennessee there was once a doctor, who was called in to attend an old Confederate soldier who was sick. The doctor attended the patient for some days and administered numerous restoratives, but none seemed to have the desired effect, and the patient declined all the while, finally lapsing into a rigid, unconscious condition and apparently death was at hand. The doctor did many things to revive him, but without success. Now, it happened that the patient was one of that famous tribe who love their drink, but, being very poor, he was not able to supply himself with the "cup that cheers." The doctor, remembering the old fellow's weakness for spirits frummenti, sent for a bottle of liquor. As he entered the room, seeing the patient was still in this rigid, unconscious condition, he stated to the patient's wife, a good, religious old woman, that he had exhausted every other remedy in his efforts to stimulate and revive the old man, and he had decided to give him a good, stiff drink of liquor. The wife thereupon protested and begged the doctor not to give her husband the "vile stuff," saying, "I had rather he would die and go home to glory without it than for his appetite for the villainous stuff to be revived."

The doctor replied to the wife: "Very well, if you object, I'll not give it to him."

Then for the first time in several days, the old man turned slowly on his side, raised up on his elbow and said:

"Puss (that was his wife's name), I reckon the doctor knows his business, don't he?"—National Monthly.

SHINING MARK IN COMMUNITY

Pen Sketch of "Prominent Citizen," as a Magazine Writer Views the Type.

A prominent citizen (according to Smart Set)—Any male who owns a dress suit, is a member of two expensive clubs, is opposed to child labor, acts as honorary pallbearer at least four funerals a year; is a member of at least two public boards or commissions which never meet, prefers a musical comedy to "Tristan and Isolde," owns a "library edition" of Guy de Maupassant, bought from a book agent, regards all socialists as scoundrels, has a theory to account for all money panics, possesses only one wife, sends his children to Sunday school as a punishment for petty misdemeanors, believes in free will and the greatness of Charles Dickens, is (or wishes he were) director of a national bank, has his shoes shined every day, cultivates an illegible signature, thinks it is immoral for a workman to get drunk on a Saturday night, contributes to all relief funds managed by newspapers, rides in a taxicab, constantly argues that the country is going to the dogs—and wears a stick.

Finding Effect of Heat on Buildings.

An engineer has invented a delicate little instrument for studying defects of big buildings and steel bridges. Boring two tiny holes in any steel girder of a bridge or building, he puts the points of his instrument in the holes, and then, by sliding the tubes, measures the space between the holes. When the weather changes, he measures the space between the holes again. If it has increased or diminished by one ten-thousandth of an inch, his instrument detects it. It shows the minute strains and movements of a few inches of the steel-work, and from this knowledge it is easy to calculate the total movements in the structure under the influence of wind and sun and frost and other forces. A slight expansion or shortening tells that the structure has a good constitution. A considerable difference in the space between the two holes indicates that something is wrong.

Made Record as Pedestrian.

A Scottish minister, Dr. Cameron Lees of Edinburgh, who died recently, was a noted pedestrian. While still in the active discharge of his duties as minister of St. Giles', Edinburgh, he made a point of walking ten miles per day and six on Sunday, and in the course of some years managed to walk a distance equal to that round the world at its widest part. This he did twice. In 1910, after going to reside at Kingussie, he walked 2,090 miles, a distance of that equal to John O'Groats, from here to Land's End and back, and then back again to Kingussie. Two years ago he started with the idea of walking a distance equal to that from John O'Groats to Land's End and back to Kingussie. He succeeded in doing that, covering a total of 1,624 miles—a remarkable feat for a man bordering on four score.

If she has four daughters and two are at one place while the other two are away from home, and separate, the Mrs. misses the Miss and the Misses and the Miss, the Miss and the Misses miss the Mrs. and the Miss misses the Mrs. and the Misses miss the Mrs.—Ladies' Home Journal.

RETIRED IN SHOWY MANNER

Maid Brought Her Chattels to Front Door in Wheelbarrow, But Leaves in Auto at Rear.

The conversation in the cloakroom having turned from tariff to servants, Senator Warren of Wyoming told this tale:

The maid in a Washington family had resigned, according to the senator, and an hour or two before she left the house her mistress, in anything but a sweet temper, said to her:

"I hope you will leave here in a better manner than you came. If I remember rightly, your goods were brought here in a wheelbarrow!"

"I am going away in an automobile," said the maid, as a motor car's chugging was heard outside in the back alley. "My new mistress is sending one for my clothes and things."

"Is that so?" was the scornful response of the ruffled woman. "Then why don't they drive up to the door in a respectful and respectable manner, instead of choosing the alley-way?"

"I don't know," replied the maid, "but I suppose they don't care to let people think they are on visiting terms here."—Washington Star.

"Maria, you needn't sit up for me; I shall be detained at the office until very late."

"Now turn y'r face to that wall, an' don't look aroun' till you've counted a hundred, or I'll fill yuh full o' holes!"

"That you, Nell? I've had a hard time getting you. I'm talking over the long distance phone. I've just missed the boat and won't be home till tomorrow afternoon."

"You're too late, officer; the thieves have got half an hour the start of you!"

Nothing to It.

"I thought you promised me that you would not wear one of those silhouette skirts."

"I never promised you anything of the kind, on the contrary you gave me permission to wear one."

"Woman, you must be crazy! When did I ever give you such permission?"

"Didn't you say the other day that you heard I had ordered one?"

"Yes, and I did hear it."

"And didn't say: 'There's nothing to it?'"

"Yes."

"And when I said that you replied: 'Oh, all right then.'"

Little Learning Dangerous.

"Why don't you try to make your constituents understand problems of government?"

"That's what I have done," replied Senator Sorghum. "I have been too thorough about it. A lot of them now think that they can give advice instead of taking it."

MONEY MATTERS.

"The People Pay For All Premiums and I Never Accept Trading Stamps"

The above remark was made at a little social gathering the other night by one of the best known housekeepers in the city. The following day a lady of keen discernment travelled twenty miles to shop with us and after spending a large sum with us—shopping in every department, told the writer that her husband had requested that she confine her trading to this house—because we give no premiums—no trading stamps, and he felt he paid for nothing but merchandise when he shopped here.

These two striking remarks caused us to investigate the premium and trading stamp cost to the customer and see just what the customer gets in return for the tremendous additional cost of what legislatures in some states have termed "parasites on honest wage earners."

The "argument" that the public does not pay for stamps is childish. The cost of stamps is added to the expense account which must be taken care of by the profits on merchandise. Expense of advertising, lights, salaries, &c., are recognized as necessary in the conduct of legitimate business. These have grown enormously in recent years, forcing merchants to increase the profits on their wares in keeping with increase in advertising rates, rents, salaries and other items of expense. When merchants add the enormous increase of 3 per cent, to their expense account in the form of trading stamps, they are forcing their customers to pay for something that is of no benefit to anyone except the Trading Stamp Companies. The merchant pays 2 1/2 to 3 per cent, or $2.50 or $3.00 for each $100 in stamps. The "premium" store gives back about two dollars worth of deceptive merchandise for the $100 worth of stamps. The "redemption" store gives $4.00 in merchandise at trading stamp prices, for the $100 worth of stamps. The Trading Stamp Companies make profits of 75c to $2.00 on each $100 worth of stamps that are distributed by merchants.

The Trading Stamp business has been condemned by the Legislature of a number of States, but the courts, while admitting the nefariousness of the scheme have decided that it is "within the law!"

We are assured by hundreds of customers that they prefer to buy merchandise in the full confidence that it is sold at its legitimate commercial value, and we will continue our policy of twenty-five years of selling goods at the lowest possible prices consistent with our high standard of quality.

SATISFACTION OR MONEY BACK WITHOUT DEMUR

EVERY ARTICLE SOLD WITH AN ABSOLUTE GUARANTEE

We have prospered under this banner while other stores have been forced to resort to trading stamps, combinations of premium stores—and the necessity of marking merchandise high enough to take care of the extra expense.

We have studiously avoided all such. We simply kept close to our principles to sell goods just as cheap as our great buying organization would permit, and to charge the customer simply for what he gets—nothing more—and to entreat the people to come back when they are not satisfied.

There is nothing that can induce us to lower our flag or dishonor it in the least.

Six Doctors Reported Clinical Cases For Examination.

The Christian County Medical Society held its regular monthly meeting at the Avalon last Tuesday. There were fourteen of the members present and the occasion was in every way just what could be desired by progressive physicians.

The presentation of clinical cases for examination and discussion has become a very important feature of the meetings and last Tuesday there were six presentations, made by Drs. Sandbach, Donnelly, Lackey, Backus, Caudle and Barnes.

Dr. Stites presided with his usual dignity. He is always present when his professional duties will permit and has been a member of the society from his earliest days.

Dr. Bazley read a very interesting paper on "Dentilation and Drainage of Nasal Diseases."

Dr. Rice had prepared and read a very learned paper on "Pellagra." This subject was ably discussed by Drs. R. Z. H. Curry, Barnes, Lackey and Sandbach.

The Association expressed its deep sympathy with Dr. J. A. Suthall in his bereavement by the death of his wife by the adoption of appropriate resolutions.

$5,000 Pearl In Oyster.

When George Rogovoy, a Russian tourist, sat down at a table in a Chestnut street restaurant, he did not know that before he arose he would throw away a pearl supposed to be worth $2,000 and retain one valued at $5,000.

Rogovoy and his wife began their dinner with oysters, and the former was eating his third bivalve when he bit into a hard substance. He supposed it was part of the shell and threw it on the floor.

On eating the sixth oyster Rogovoy's teeth came in contact with another hard substance which he took from his mouth and examined critically.

Believing that he had found a gem he took the object to a jeweler, who pronounced it a pear-shaped pearl of perfect contour and placed its value at $5,000.—New York Tribune.

CONVICT LABOR.

Prison Board Getting Ready For The Future.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 22.—In anticipation of the adoption of the constitutional amendment, providing for the employment of convicts outside the prison walls, the Board of Prison Commissioners to-day rejected all bids for the labor of 125 men at the Eddyville penitentiary, the present contract for whose labor will expire next Friday.

The R. H. Hance Manufacturing Co., offered 67½ cents per capita per day but the commissioners thought the labor worth more than that, and if they cannot get more they will consider employing the men on work for the State institutions.

Chairman O'Sullivan said if these men are employed they, with about 100 at Frankfort Reformatory, would comprise a nucleus for carrying out whatever plan the General Assembly might adopt for working convicts if the constitutional amendment carries.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one remedial disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. "If I were not an actress," she said to a friend recently, "I should surely have gone into the millinery business. A beautiful hat, graceful in line and effective as to color scheme is to my thinking a real work of art; and if a woman has taste and a bit of skill, she may be able to make herself a dozen hats where only one could be afforded before." PILES, PILES, PILES.

A house cure given by one who had it! I was suffering with piles during 24 years, as only those who have it know, I tried remedy after remedy, doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned during the last 12 months. I want any sufferer from any form of piles to try this marvelous remedy. Don't send a cent—simply mail your name and address. I will send it free to try, and after you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long looked for means of curing piles, you may send the price of it—$10 (ten dollars)—for which will be sent you enough of the remedy to cure you sound and well, no matter how severe your case is nor of how long standing. Understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly willing to send it—isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Address Dr. D. Garfinkle, 509½ Sixth avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Explanatory.

A headline referring to Ike Blumenthal as a crazy Jew, was taken as disrespectful to his race by Mr. J. L. Freedman, the butcher. The Kentuckian hastens to assure Mr. Freedman that Blumenthal's nationality was referred to just as a Governor's an Irishman's or a Frenchman's would have been for purposes of description or identification. No offensive reference to Jews has ever intentionally appeared in this paper. Besides it was a misfortune and not a fault that the stranger became insane. In the same paper a reference was made to the insanity of King Otto of Bavaria. (No disrespect was intended toward either him or Blumenthal.

COULDN'T SPELL IT HIMSELF

Amusing Story Related by Secretary Tumulty of a Former Member of Board of Education.

Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, tells of a former member of the Jersey City board of education who, upon a visit to one of the schools took a reader from the teacher's hand and addressed the nearest little girl.

"My dear, can you spell 'egg-pit'?" he said.

The little girl didn't recognize the word, but was willing to take a chance, so she said:

"E-g-g-p-i-t."

"Erroneous—can anybody else spell it?" the inquisitor asked, looking over the room.

Other children tried. Some spelled it with one g, others with two t's. All wrong. The member of the board had his big finger on the word, and knew. He turned to the teacher.

"Of course, ma'am, you know how to spell it?"

The teacher blushed and confessed that, while she was not familiar with the word, she would expect it to be spelled as it sounded—"e-g-g-p-i-t."

"Not familiar with it!" roared the guardian of the public instruction. "Not familiar with it—it's right here in the book!"

The teacher looked and saw the word—EGYPT.

VISIBLE REDUCTION.

"Yes, De Blood has been riding a horse a great deal lately for the purpose of reducing flesh."

"That so? Has it reduced his weight much?"

"No. But you ought to see the horse."

New Form of Music.

He was a fellow of delicate organization. When he heard a sound which irritated him he leaped madly to his feet and rush from the room, or, if it happened to be on the ground floor, lived through a window and landed in the flower garden.

Having been invited from the city to the country, he found himself surrounded every day by a family who had not the faintest elemental ideas of how to eat soup. He stood it two days, his jangling nerves urging him very moment to rebellion. Finally he oldest daughter of the house condescended to him her objection to her father's habit of eating soup in a loud manner.

The nervous visitor, who thought he father didn't have much on the daughter in this respect, exclaimed: "Loud eating of soup! He doesn't eat it. He whistles it!"—Popular Magazine.

Her Idea of Shakespeare.

Old Mammy Lize was dusting the old woman's drawing-room. She came to a small bronze bust of Shakespeare and began carefully going over him with her rag.

"Miss Juliet, chile, who am dis yere gemmun?"

"That is Shakespeare, Lize, a wonderful poet, who died years ago."

"Dat him, miss? Lor, I've done year o' Mistah Shakespeare a lot ob times. Everybody seems to know him. Deed I done hyeah so much 'bout him dat I allus thought he was a white gemmun."

New Name for Bungalow.

A carpenter contractor had been figuring on a small house for a prosperous European-American workman in an outlying district.

"Come up to my office," he said to the prospective patron, "and we will look over some plans in a book I have."

The young man came to the office and spent some time looking over the plans with the contractor, who finally inquired:

"Have you thought anything about the kind of place you wish to build? What do you think about a nice cottage?"

"I do know," replied the young man, "but I think maybe we like a nice bungalow."—Youngstown Telegram.

Why He Lingered.

"Well, why are you loitering along here at this hour of the morning?" asked a policeman of a wilted looking person who was clinging to a lamp post.

"It's thish way, offisher," answered the villiant one. "Tain't that I'm afraid to go home in the dark. I'm afraid of my wife when she turns on the light."

Quick Response.

"In the emergency class the other day, I asked Maggie Smith if she was good at a pinch."

"Well, how did she answer?"

"She pinched me."

Striker—What's that y' say? Yer stopped takin' in washin'?

Wife—Certainly I ave. I struck in sympathy with you and yer mates.

ACCOUNTING FOR RED HAIR

Englishman Has Gone Deeply Into the Subject, and His Opinions Are Worth Consideration.

Fifty small boys and girls, every one of them with red hair, who belong to the village of Burbage, a mile from Nuneaton, are feeling tremendously important. They used to be sorry about their hair; now it is just the other way round. It is a fine thing to be "carrots" in Burbage.

Major Hurst, the scientist, is responsible for this. The explanation is that Major Hurst has been making an exhaustive inquiry into the theory and practice of red-headedness, and has invited the British association when it meets at Birmingham this month to visit Burbage and examine the material upon which he has based his conclusions. The 50 red-haired children, combed and brushed and in their best bibs and tuckers, are to sit in a row while the savants compare the tints of their cranial coverings and listen to the genealogical details supplied by the learned major.

Truly a great day for the house of Rufus! It has waited for it since the world began, and the first boy said: "Yah! Carrots!"

"All mankind," Major Hurst said, "may be divided into those who are red-haired and those who are not red-haired. It is a fundamental difference."

"That is what the red-haired children of Burbage are saying, and they have no doubt on which side the advantage lies. As a matter of fact there are about as many red-haired people in this village as in any other of equal population, but the difference is that Burbage Rufuses have come into their own and the others have not."

"At some spots they are quite thick on the ground. I found one family of twelve children, in which six were unmistakably red, although both parents were dark."

In almost every case of a red-haired child Major Hurst has succeeded in discovering a red-haired ancestor, and he thinks that practically the whole of the red-haired population springs from a single red-haired man far back in the past.

Here are a few of his conclusions: In order for red to appear it must be in the ancestry on both sides.

A red father and a dark mother, or vice versa, hardly ever had a red child.

Two reds always have red offspring. But it is exceedingly rare to find two reds marry, as they seem to have a mutual antipathy.

It is a popular fallacy that red-haired people have any distinctive temperament.—London News and Leader.

Where All Are Honest.

No police are needed in the most honest village of Europe—that of Dezenacker, near Ingolstadt, Bavaria. In the last hundred years not a single case of theft has been recorded either in the village or in the immediate neighborhood. But, what is still more remarkable, it has done its best to conceal its record from the general public, and it is only by accident that the fact has become known. The village has been attempting some time past to persuade the Bavarian authorities that it stands in no need of a night watchman. As it is an isolated village of only 150 inhabitants, it is impossible to give it the benefit of the rural police force, and—as in all such cases under Bavarian administration—it is compelled to satisfy the authorities with an amateur night watch. At present there are twenty young men on the roll for this service, and they take it in turns year in and year out. Later, however, some of the younger ones have found the duty rather irksome and have been asking whether it is necessary. The village discussed the matter from house to house, and the decision was absolutely unanimous—the night watch was absolutely unneeded.

Our Smallest Island Possession.

To our banker friends in Philadelphia and the east—those who live on the mainland, as well as those who inhabit the smallest of our island possessions, Manhattan—the news will come as a shock that the Illinois Bankers' association has so far departed from conventional standards as to throw on the junk heap the verbose and vacuous variety of resolutions customarily adopted by such organizations, and in their place has fathered a new sort, the heart of which is contained in this quotation:

"We have lost sight of the greatest of all assets, the preservation and conservation of the soil itself; and the millions of boys and girls who are now on or are all too rapidly drifting away from the farm because so little intelligent efforts has been made to bring it and them into their rightful heritage."—Philadelphia North American.

Glassmaking Revolution.

Based upon recent discoveries connected with the application of new chemical formulas, Prof. Alexander Silverman, head of the chemical department of the University of Pittsburgh, announced that developments in the glass industry in the future will be as revolutionary as those in the manufacture of steel in the past.

"I believe that the chemist will completely revolutionize the manufacture of glass within the next 20 or 25 years," Professor Silverman said, "and that effects will be produced which have never been dreamed of. At the same time, the cost will be reduced in many cases, and products which at present are wasted will be utilized."

The Love Letters of a Confederate General

WE begin in the November issue a series of real love-letters written over fifty years ago by one of our national heroes to his sweetheart during the period of '61 to '65. This great general will go down to posterity as having accomplished one of the most brilliant feats of arms in the history of the world. He was as great a lover as he was a general, therefore these letters combine authentic history and exquisite romance. They sound a human note that no other work of literature has done in a decade; it is war, it is romance, it is history, it is literature. You simply can't afford to miss this wonderful series—an inside story of the Civil War now published for the first time and containing all the freshness of a contemporary happening. These letters will grip you, and hold your interest from first to last. Fill out the coupon and send it now before you forget it.

WOULD SERVE AS SOLDIERS
French Women Anxious to Make Every Sacrifice for the Sake of Their Loved Country.

The women of France are not content with merely serving as nurses on the field of battle and attendants on the wounded or dying. They have in their minds the example of Joan of Arc and other heroines of France, and they are confirmed in their aspirations after military service, according to the Journal des Debats (Paris), by the example of the ancient Amazons of Greek mythology. They affirm that the law of three years in France will not produce forces of reserve sufficient to defend the frontier of their well loved country. They have accordingly through the hands of Colonel Driant, commanding the troops in Paris, sent a petition, carrying about a thousand signatures, to President Poincare in which they say:
"The French women who have illuminated our history with so many beautiful examples of self-denial and self-sacrifice do not wish in the present generation to be surpassed by the women of other countries in which the question of female rights is being so earnestly agitated.
"The members of the Red Cross company have already obtained leave to serve in the ambulance corps. But a great number of us, not having the leisure to pass the infirmity examinations, would like to make ourselves useful to their country, and would desire that a law should be passed in parliament giving them this privilege.
"Our dearest hope is to obtain an opportunity of offering to France some part of our youth, and so to co-operate with our brothers in the national defense."—Literary Digest.

CURIOUS JAPANESE FOWLS

Among the most wonderful of rare fowls are the Phoenix, the males among which have tails five feet long.
It is the custom to keep the birds in houses, the only windows in which are near the roof, and with perches in front of the windows so high that the tail feathers will not drag on the ground. Each day the birds are taken for a walk, while an attendant carefully holds up the tail so that the feathers will not become broken or soiled.
Mounted specimens of the cock and hen of this breed were obtained in Tokio by H. D. Baker, vice consul General to Australia. The tail of the rooster is 11 feet long. The hen is very plain. These cocks are very vain of their beauty.

London Had Cabs in 1822.
Carbriolets, one-horse vehicles, from which we get the name cabs, were first introduced into the streets of London in 1822, when twelve were placed in service. In 1831 they had increased to 165, and then the licenses were thrown open. The number in 1862 running in the English metropolis exceeded six thousand. Previous to throwing open the trade, the number of hackney carriages was limited to twelve hundred, when there were few omnibuses. The horse carriages are rapidly being supplanted by taxicabs in the streets of London.

Device Figures the Interest.
A Hungarian citizen has invented an instrument which shows instantly the amount of interest due on any given sum for any period at any given rate of interest.
The instrument, which is made in the size and shape of a watch, has a very simple construction, and all that is necessary to operate it is to place the hands in the proper position on the dial and the exact amount of interest in each case is indicated on the face. The instrument is inexpensive and its usefulness is apparent. The inventor has applied for an American patent.

Somewhat Hard to Do.
Patsy and Tom were working near where there was a beehive and a bed of onions, when a bee stung Tom on the wrist. Patsy exclaimed: "I always told yez whin y'd get a sting av a bee to suck it and thin rub in onion juice." After a short time a bee edged on Patsy's neck when he shouted: "Oh, Tom, there's wan on me neck. Oh, 'tis gone down between me shoulders. Begorra, I'm stung!"
Suck it, Patsy," ordered Tom: "suck
it, I'll rub in the onion juice."

IN THE CASE OF MENTAL FOG Depression That May Arise From Many Causes Is to Be Fought Off as Dire Enemy.

We all of us have days when nothing seems to go right.
You have a feeling of utter depression come over you.
Not because there is anything particularly the matter, but you're dissatisfied.

So you sit in a desolate hump and wonder what's the good of anything —especially yourself, and the little petty details of your life.
"Of what use am I after all?" you say to yourself.

A kind of mental fog has taken hold of you and you are sitting in a mist, so to speak.

Well, do you know what is the very best thing in the world for you to do?

Get out of it quickly.
Remind yourself that every one has these horrid moods, but every one can master them if they will only set to work the right way.

One of the best ways to cure yourself when you feel cross, or miserable, or discouraged is to go and do something for somebody else.

Never yield to a mood of idleness or fear, of depression or worry; the more you think about these things the worse they become.

Start doing some work that will employ all your physical energies and concentrate your mind on the subject in hand.

If it's only making beds, make up your mind to do it with all your might.

Of course, if you can go out for a good walk you have a sovereign cure, and a good many girls who go to the city would be better in health and spirits if they walked at least a part of the way to and from their offices.

Depression is very often caused by ill health, and it's quite certain that if you continue in a mood of depression for any length of time you need a visit to the doctor.

In most cases depression is an ill
just like neuralgia or headache.

And if you find yourself getting blue sometimes, don't make too much of it, don't agonize about your "nerves" and so on.

Give yourself, if you can, some little extra pleasure; take a girl friend out to tea; go and see a play.

Never mind whether you feel inclined or not, once you are there you will enjoy yourself thoroughly and go home feeling ever so much brighter and better for the little change of scene and thought.

Anyway, when there are so many nice things in the world, make up your mind that you won't lose any of the opportunities to help others and be happy by dwelling in mental gloom.—Chicago Tribune.

Lost—One Powder Magazine.

A day or two ago M. Hennion, the prefect of police, was passing along a corridor in the prefecture, when he noticed an "agent" dozing on a bench.
"What are you doing there?" asked M.
Hennion, in a tone that effectually wakened this subordinate. "Guarding the powder magazine," was the answer. "And where is the powder magazine that you are guarding so zealously?" was the prefect's next question.

The policeman had to confess that he didn't know. M. Hennion organized a search, not with candles, one may be sure, for the elusive magazine. It was nowhere to be found. Finally, the oldest inhabitant of the prefecture supplied the key to the enigma. The powder magazine was, it appeared, the name given to a lumber room in which a few rifles and pistols had been stored since 1875. M. Hennion, who has been sweeping very clean since his arrival at the prefecture, and is not without a sense of humor, has presented the venerable relics to the museum of the army.—Paris Letter to the London Telegraph.

Essay on Hens.

A school boy says in an essay:
"Hens are curious animals; they don't have no nose, nor no teeth, nor no ears. They swallow their wittles whole, and chew it up in their crops inside 'em. The outside of hens is generally put into pillars and into feather dusters. The inside of a hen is sometimes filled with marbles and shirt buttons, and such. A hen is very much smaller than a good many other animals, but they'll dig up more tomato plants than anything that ain't a hen. Hens is very useful to lay eggs for plum-puddings. Hens have got wings and can fly when they get frightened. I cut off a hen's head with a hatchet, and it frightened her to death."

Womanly Sympathy.

A sharp-tongued married woman, who had been openly commiserating an elderly spinster on her loveless state, went on to talk volubly about her husband's health.

"Poor man, he has been a great sufferer for fifteen years," she remarked.

"I can quite believe that, dear," said the spinster, still smarting under the married woman's sarcastic "sympathy." "Let me see, it is just fifteen years since you married him, is it not?"

Distinctive Marks.

The family laundry had just been returned, and the usual struggle to identify their respective belongings was on. "That's my shirt!" insisted the elder brother, who worked in a printing establishment. "I can tell by that ink spot."

"Pshaw!" exclaimed the younger brother, who worked in a lumber yard, "I suppose, in order to be mine, it would have to have silvers in it."

Democrat Won.

In the most fiercely contested judicial election in the history of Illinois, Charles C. Craig, democrat, of Galesburg, was elected to the supreme bench to succeed Judge John P. Hand by a majority of 3,646 over Judge Leslie D. Puerbaugh, republican, of Peoria. Arthur H. Shay, the progressive candidate, of Streator, ran nearly 5,000 behind the republican.

Political experts attribute the democratic success to the entrance of the progressive and woman suffrage elements into the campaign.

NEW SYSTEM OF TAXATION

Kentucky Working to Evolve
New Plan For Assessing
Its Property Holders.

BILL DRAWN BY AN EXPERT.

Movement on Foot at Louisville to Rebuild Tuberculosis Hospital Destroyed By Fire.

Louisville, Ky., October 20.—The most important reformation that has been proposed for the State of Kentucky for half a century is the reformation of the tax system, and the draft of the first proposal of the form this is to take is in the hands of the members of the State Tax Commission.

It is a proposed new tax system for the state drawn by Professor Carl Plehn, tax expert of California, who was engaged by the State Tax Commission appointed by the last Legislature to come to Kentucky, study its tax system, point out the defects and propose a new law.

The commission will study Prof. Plehn's bill carefully and determine in just what form it shall go to the legislature.

The Plehn bill abolishes the Board of Valuation and Assessment, which now assesses corporations and railroad franchises; the Board of Equalization, which "equalize" the assessments returned by the counties; the State Auditor's agents who ferret out sequestered property and share in the taxes recovered; the local Boards of Supervisors who are supposed to correct the work of the city and county assessors, and last of all it abolishes the assessors themselves.

After making this clean sweep the bill substitutes a state tax commission to assess corporations and railroads, to superintend the assessment of property of every description and to manage the state's entire tax business. This commission will employ deputies who are to be appointed from a civil service list, and to be retained for efficiency. These deputies are to view the property and assess it themselves instead of getting a return on the property.

The bill divides the state into thirty-five taxing districts, conforming to the judicial districts. This makes districts large enough for the state to pay good salaries and secure competent men. The bill plans to develop expert assessors who can appraise property, especially real estate at its fair cash value, which the bill says must be the basis of valuation.

The tax commission is to have maps prepared and the deputies are to keep up with the property and provide necessary data so that once the value of the property has been established it will be a comparatively easy matter to keep up the assessment.

The doing away with the complicated tax system of the present will, it is estimated, result in a saving of at least $50,000 a year. It is believed that the new law will also bring about a reduction of taxes to the small holder but will bring a much larger revenue to the state, because it will tax much property that now escapes.

The tax commission proposed by the bill is to consist of three men to be appointed by the Governor, one of them to be a member of a minority party.

The Revival at First Baptist Church.

REV. J. H. DEW.

The Baptist revival is increasing in interest from day to day. Large crowds are attending the evening services and the attendance at 3 p. m. is also good. Evangelist Dew is a powerful and most effective speaker and his appeals to sinners are strong and earnest.

Next week a singer from Texas, Mr. Raborne, will arrive to lead the music. Services as heretofore.

In Other Days.

Spooning parlors were not thought of for churches in days gone by. Furthermore, a young man could not look sweet at a girl without being observed through the fingers of some deacon who had assumed an attitude of prayer for detective purposes.
